EDITOR'S BOTTOMLINE

India has several speciality coffees and over three dozen estate brands for the global markets. Many more are in the making. The cuppers, graders and tasters are trying to tell a unique story about the origin of a particular coffee. Indian green coffee on its own is capable of fetching premium prices in the global markets," says Sunalini Menon, founder of Bangalore-based Coffeelab.

Even after getting out of the shackles of the pooling system in 1996, in which the Coffee Board and the Government controlled the trade of coffee, the bean maintained a special status as a valuable export commodity for a long time. It earned recognition across the Agriculture, Commerce, Finance and Environment Ministries as a serious Forex earner for the exchequer. India's share in the global coffee market may be less than 5%, but the coffee sector is hopeful that the Coffee Act and the new Coffee (Promotion and Development Bill), 2022, will do away the 80-year-old coffee regulation and usher in change. As a precursor, the Coffee Board has embarked on a series of initiatives to unleash the full potential of the cuppa in the domestic and global markets. It is working on a separate India brand and certification system for coffee growers.

The coffee community in India, comprising close to 4 lakh coffee growers, hundreds of large planters, associations that represent growers, planters, curers and exporters, and over a dozen Fair Trade Organisations, hopes to boost coffee in the domestic and international markets and counter the problems the industry faces. — Mini Tejaswi in The Hindu

Man with 30% lung capacity runs marathon

Brisbane: An Australian man has become known as the COPD Athlete because of his incredible ability to run entire marathons despite having only 30 percent lung capacity as a result of an incurable and progressive condition.

Russell Winwood was diagnosed with COPD (Chronic Obstructive Pulmonary Disease) in 2011. For years, he competed in varying distances of triathlons, from sprint to Half Ironman and even a few ultra-marathons. But at one point, Winwood found it difficult to breathe. That's when he received his COPD diagnosis, along with the warning that his lungs were operating at less than 30 percent capacity.

A champagne bottle fit for space celebrations

Paris: French champagne brand G.H. Mumm has poured a lot of time and resources into developing a futuristic champagne bottle that can be used in space. The Mumm Cordon Rouge Stellar is the first champagne designed specifically for space travel. It comes in a half-glass bottle and features a specially-designed stainless steel opening-closing device that curves over the classic cork. The unique bottle apparently features a finger-controlled valve which, when engaged, releases a globule of champagne spheres. Astronauts or space tourists can then scoop the drink out of the air using special glasses that resemble tiny egg cups.

Some causes for landslides atop Chamundi Hill

The present road surface is on a deep earth fill over the original formation level.

Sir,

It was reported that one more landslide has struck the Nandi Statue Road atop Chamundi Hill (SOM dated Oct. 21). Repeated slides seem to have given rise to the perception that this isolated escarpment has grown weak and become landslide-prone, possibly because of human intervention beyond the carrying capacity of the region.

In the background of my experience with the landslides of Kodagu and extensive studies pertaining to them, I have visited and tried to understand the causes for slides in Chamundi Hill.

I am convinced that the slides on the Nandi Statue Road are all a failure of the structure of the road and are not movement of the land per-se.

It is found that the present road surface in many parts is formed on 15 to 20 ft deep earth fills over the original formation — a couple of culverts built across the original road have also been exposed by the excavation now done for repairing the road.

With the growth of exceptionally dense shrubby vegetation on the slopes during the last decade and excessive rainfall, the quantity of water infiltrating into the ground has enhanced extensively during the last three years.

Because the land is basically rocky with little scope for percolation below the soil layer, the infiltrating water has flown in the lateral direction as seepage. This subsurface flow has led to removal of the loose material in the filling, leading to the slides being witnessed.

In fact, no 'true landslide', of the kind that occurred in 1994, has been experienced these days. Hence, there seems to be no threat of the Hill having become unstable.

However, the current series of slides has brought to light the dangers involved in undue development works on the slopes and the new event goes to raise questions on the reliability and adequacy of the restoration work being taken up.

It is observed that a good part of this stretch of the road is in filling and quite a length is on the verge of caving in. Hence, the restoration work underway is bound to go to waste, unless the whole stretch is engineered properly. Restoring the road to the original formation level or a bit above it with properly designed earth filling seems to be the only way out.

Mysuru, Oct. 27 (KS)- Titular head of the erstwhile Mysore royal family Yaduveer Krishnadatta Chamaraja Wadiyar inaugurated Motherhood Hospital at Yadavagiri in city recently.

The fastest growing chain of women and children's hospitals in the country, city's Motherhood Hospital is the eighth one in the State and 19th in the country.

Speaking on the occasion, Yaduveer said that women were the crucial pillars of the society and the cornerstone of every family's health. They should have access to healthcare services that are inclusive, dynamic and non-judgemental.

Yaduveer wished the Hospital's Management, doctors and staff the very best.

Mr. Vijayarathna Venkatraman, CEO of Motherhood Hospitals said "Our aim at Motherhood Hospitals has always been to deliver exceptional healthcare experience to our patients and their families. Women and children need compassionate and efficient service in a homely and comfortable environment, no matter where they reside. With the launch of our Mysuru Centre, we hope to bridge the gap between healthcare services in Tier 1 and Tier 2 cities. We are hoping to cater to patients not just from the city but also from Kodagu, Chamarajanagar, Hanur, Mandya, Nanjangud and Hassan among the others."

He said that Motherhood Hospital offers a full stack of women's healthcare services along with a strong NICU level 3 facility which is one of the strongest pillars of the Hospital and backed by highly experienced and dedicated experts in pregnancy care, gynaecology, laparoscopic surgery, fertility, paediatrics, neonatology and foetal medicine. The Neonatal Care Unit (NICU) at Motherhood is a level III unit and the same facility is available at Mysuru Centre too.

Stating that children need accurate diagnosis and treatment right from their foetal stage to their adolescence and young adulthood, Vijayarathna said that women health needs specialised care for their reproductive health right from puberty through womanhood and old age.

"Regular assessments and timely check-ups are crucial when it comes to health issues. Unfortunately, women tend to ignore their reproductive health and only visit the doctors when necessary. At the Mysuru Centre we will aim to create awareness amongst women of the region on the importance of preventative gynaec health checks for early diagnosis and treatment," he added.

Motherhood Hospital's Regional Operation head (South) Parveez Jameel, Dr. Suhaim, Dr. Chethan and others were present.

MUDA to launch Group Housing Scheme

By S.T. Ravikumar

Proposed construction of 2 BHK multistoried apartment building at Survey No. 21/1, 2 Dattagalli village, Ramakrishnanagar, Mysuru

Mysuru, Oct. 27- With the city considered as the second fastest growing city after the State Capital Bengaluru, the MUDA (Mysuru Urban Development Authority) will soon be coming up with a Group Housing Scheme, under which 952 houses will be built for aspirants from middle class and economically backward sections at an affordable price. Initially the project will be executed in Vijayanagar Fourth Stage and Dattagalli.

Under the scheme, the MUDA will be constructing 560 houses in Vijayanagar Fourth Stage, Second Phase (Basavanahalli) and 392 houses in Dattagalli (Ramakrishnanagar) A and B Blocks, totalling 952 houses, at a total cost of Rs. 342 crore.

After preparing the DPR for the proposed project for construction of 2BHK multistoried apartments at Survey No. 21/1, 2 in Dattagalli and at Basavanahalli (Vijayanagar Fourth Stage), the MUDA has sent it for Government approval.

The multistoried apartment complex will have 4 blocks comprising 320 units at the two sites. The amenities provided include retail centres, coffee shop, jogging track, gardens, kids play area, water bodies, borewells/ KUWSDB water connection, STP, UGD network, solar power backup for common area lighting, a lift lobby, 1 car parking facility for every 2 units, roads, external street lights, rainwater harvesting, fire fighting systems, stairs and corridors, compound walls, organic waste converter, a 3 KW power connection, etc. The height of each tower would be 30 to 35 metres.

The Vijayanagar Fourth Stage Group Housing Complex will be of G+14 type, with 32 houses in each of the 14 floors totalling 448 houses (Units) in one tower and 8 houses (Units) in each of the 14 floors in the other tower, totalling 112 houses. In Dattagalli, each of the 14 floors will have 28 houses, totalling 392 houses. In all, 952 houses will come up in a total area (Vijayanagar Fourth Stage and Dattagalli) covering 7.28 acres. The project, once approved by the Government, will be completed in about 18 months, thus reducing the pressure on urban housing.

The MUDA will be using funds from deposits made from sale of sites in the past, collection of instalment money from Group Housing beneficiaries and its own budgetary allocation.

The Group Housing Scheme comes as a boon for thousands of aspirants who are waiting for years to have their own house in the city. The MUDA, which had launched a demand survey a couple of years ago before going ahead of the project, had received a whopping 46,000 applications, which shows the high demand for affordable houses.

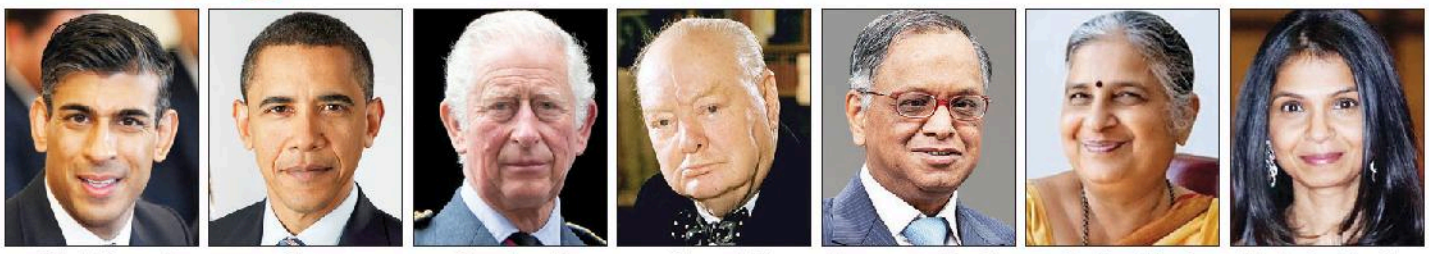
Rishi Sunak's Finest Hour

England makes its choice



Rishi Sunak | Obama | Charles III | Churchill | Narayana Murthy | Sudha Murty | Akshata Murthy

I am 100% sure the late lamented World War II British Prime Minister and hero, Winston Churchill (Sir Winston Leonard Spencer Churchill) must be turning in his grave at the tiny Parish Church close to Blenheim Palace, the house in which he was born.

Why do I say this? I say this because, Churchill being an India baiter all his life, despite serving in India, posted at our own Bengaluru and North-West Frontier (which was then part of British Indian Empire), would be the most unhappy person in today's Britain to see an Indian-origin Hindu being elected by the Conservative Party as its leader and the King Charles-III handover the appointment letter to Rishi Sunak as the Prime Minister of Britain on 25th October 2022.

This appointment must have hit Churchill like a thunderbolt because he had entered the British Parliament as a Conservative Party MP in 1900. Of course, he had no qualms changing allegiance to Parties like his counterparts in India! Let it be.

The occasion seemed like a Deepavali gift for Hindus all over the world. Is it the sign of Hindu-India becoming the Vishwa Guru, an aspirational prognosis made by our Prime Minister Narendra Modi? Time alone can tell. After all, today we are observing the gradual, but significant presence of Hindus holding high offices in the governments of some countries globally, spreading its subtle political, spiritual and intellectual fragrance.

This year's Deepavali must be remembered for years to come for another reason too — India beat Pakistan in the T20 played at Australia literally by a whisker. Happy days are here again for India that is Bharat!

We have indeed a Brown Sahib as the boss for the White Sahibs who once derisively called us, with swarthy visage, as natives. During the days of Raj, hotels in England used to display a board reading "Dogs and Indians not allowed." It is said that when Jamsetji Tata opened Bombay's famous hotel Taj Mahal, a tit-for-tat board was displayed reading "Dogs and Whites not allowed." To jest, Rishi Sunak's achievement seems to reaffirm the adage that 'every dog has its day'!

I believe that all Indians, cutting across all kinds of social, political and religious barriers, are happy to see an Indian-origin person as the Prime Minister of England, a country that had colonised us for over 200 years. However, the most happy couple among them must be N.R. Narayana Murthy, the Founder of Infosys and his wife Sudha Murty, whose daughter Akshata Murthy is married to Rishi Sunak, to see their son-in-law, who had missed this high office to Liz Trussa 45 days earlier, making it lucky for him this second time.

And what a guy Rishi Sunak must be. Yes, we all know his super academic qualification and immense wealth to be a club member of the super-rich in England, beating even King Charles-III, the constitutional head who gave him the job! But to achieve all this at a young age of 42? Heavens. Oh, to be so young, trim, tall, handsome with a prominent nose, suggesting nothing of being nosy but of confidence, with a timber in his voice, being fluent in speech and gentle in his demeanour, is heaven indeed!! So agile, wakeful in response, he is the cornucopia of a charismatic personality!

We have indeed a Brown Sahib as the boss for the White Sahibs who once derisively called us, with swarthy visage, as natives. During the days of Raj, hotels in England used to display a board reading "Dogs and Indians not allowed." It is said that when Jamsetji Tata opened Bombay's famous hotel Taj Mahal, a tit-for-tat board was displayed reading "Dogs and Whites not allowed." To jest, Rishi Sunak's achievement seems to reaffirm the adage that 'every dog has its day'!

Rishi Sunak is the first Prime Minister of foreign origin of England giving the Englishman a thumbs-up. I remember former President of America Barack Obama in this context. He too was young in early 40s. Some called him the first Black President of America. But in fact he was not that black as seen in some parts of Africa, Kenya, Ghana for example. He is a mulatto — White American mother and black Kenyan father, hence of swarthy visage. Could he be also called as of foreign-origin? Well, well, in that case being a country of immigrants all their past Presidents should be of foreign-origin! Let me stop this jugulary, rigmarole and come to the point. What Barack Obama is to America, Rishi Sunak is for England.

India seems to have taken revenge against its former ruler by getting a person of Indian-origin to rule England and derived vicarious pleasure. Did India have the last laugh? The divided India's Pakistan had its revenge earlier in a small way when a person of Pakistan-origin Sadiq Khan became the Lord Mayor of London. Who knows what is buried in the womb of time for England for its past sins of centuries of colonisation to be described by the historians as an empire where the sun never set. Now sun seems to have set on England itself!

As I was watching the TV, seeing the visuals and comments about the victory of Rishi Sunak, I was also envying him. I asked myself: What was I doing at age 42? Yes, I was a pen-pusher working to make both ends meet. Then I realised the power and glory of brain power over the brawn power. Which is why, I disagree with Thomas Jefferson, the third President of America who drafted the Declaration of American Independence. In great flourish he wrote in the opening sentence that, "we hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal..." Are all men created equal? No. Which is why Rishi Sunak is different from others in England. Same way all those great achievers — may it be scientists, doctors, engineers, artists, Generals or Prime Ministers — are different from the ordinary, the masses. With this thought I watched the TV is peace, without envy, realising that I am made of poor quality clay by God or nature unlike these great achievers.

And I discovered one truth at the end: It appears that great English poet John Milton was once impelled by national pride to say that when God wishes to have some hard thing done, He sends for his English man.

How sad, the same God now sends for a Hindu man to fix his problem, 'hard thing' done. That is the irony of mankind.

BCCI's Landmark Move

Equal match fee for men, women cricketers

New Delhi, Oct. 27- In a landmark move, the Board of Control for Cricket in India (BCCI) today announced that the match fee for both men and women cricketers (contracted) will be the same.

The decision to bring women cricketers on par with men, in terms of match fee, is in many ways a landmark decision.

BCCI Secretary Jay Shah confirmed that the contracted senior women's cricketers will earn the same match fee as their male counterparts.

Jay Shah tweeted "I'm pleased to announce @BCCI's first step towards tackling discrimination. We are implementing pay equity policy for our contracted @BCCIWomen cricketers. The match fee for both Men and Women Cricketers will be same as we move into a new era of gender equality in Cricket. The @BCCIWomen cricketers will be paid the same match fee as their male counterparts. Test (Rs. 15 lakhs), ODI (Rs. 6 lakhs), T20I (Rs. 3 lakhs). Pay equity was my commitment to our women cricketers and I thank the Apex Council for their support. Jai Hind."

The decision comes just days after it was decided in the BCCI AGM that the first season of the women's IPL will be played in 2023.

Mysore Palace Board takes up reconstruction of collapsed fort wall

Mysuru, Oct. 27 (MTY&KS)- The Mysore Palace Board has taken up the reconstruction works of the portion of the Mysore Palace fort wall, which had collapsed.

The fort wall measuring 20 mts wide and 7 ft. tall, towards the left side of Kote Maramma Temple and near to the Varaha Gate of the Palace had collapsed on Oct. 18 early morning due to continuous rains in city.

The Palace Board, to prevent the fort wall from collapsing further and to prevent public from venturing close to the collapsed portion of the fort wall, had covered the collapsed spot on Oct. 18 morning itself.

The works, guided by experts, were taken up on Oct. 25 and today the works have gained momentum with workers clearing the debris. Earth excavating machines are being used to dig a trench to lay foundation stones for the fort wall and tractors are being used to transport the debris.

The fort wall will be constructed keeping the heritage looks in mind and materials which were used to construct the fort wall earlier such as stones and Surki Gaare (a type of plastering) are being used. The reconstruction works are expected to be completed within 90 days.

A tender to repair a total length of 50 mts, including the collapsed portion of the fort wall, which was in a dilapidated condition was called one-and-a-half months ago at a cost of Rs. 39 lakh, but the works could not be taken due to Dasara festivities and later due to continuous rains.

As the dilapidated length of the fort wall was very near to cannon firing exercise venue, the Forest Department was urged to shift the cannon firing drill which was being held at the parking lot near Varaha Gate of the Palace. Following the request, the venue was shifted to the Dasara Exhibition parking lot on M.G. Road.

But due to continuous heavy downpour for over 20 days, the fort wall which had already become weak collapsed.

Health Minister lashes out at ex-CM Siddharamaiah

Mysuru, Oct. 27 (RKB&DM)- Lashing out at Opposition Leader and former Chief Minister Siddharamaiah for making remarks against him in singular, Health and Medical Education Minister Dr. K. Sudhakar said that there is nothing special in Siddharamaiah calling his opponents and adversaries in singular language.

Speaking to presspersons ahead of taking part in Health Department's review meeting at Abdul Nazir Sab auditorium in ZP Office premises here this morning, Dr. Sudhakar said though the Opposition Leader has learnt everything in politics, it seems that he has not learned the art of using parliamentary language while attacking his opponents.

No Omicron variant

Referring to the tracing of a new Omicron variant in Maharashtra, Dr. Sudhakar said that there is no such case in Karnataka. But still the districts bordering Maharashtra have been sounded an alert and guidelines have been issued on preventing the virus from entering the State.

Maintaining that there is no need for making use of masks compulsory as of now, he said that the Department has appealed every citizen of the State to get the third dose of COVID vaccine in the interests of their own health and safety.

None leaving BJP

Replying to a question on whether any BJP leader is moving to Congress ahead of Assembly polls, Dr. Sudhakar said as far as his knowledge is concerned, no one is leaving BJP. "Even BJP MLC A.H. Vishwanath, who is speaking against the party of late, will not go to Congress as he is elected from the BJP," he noted.

Political Yatras

Referring to the ongoing political yatras in the State, the Minister said that with the Assembly elections just a few months away, it is but natural for the parties to take out Yatras and there is nothing special about them.

Maintaining that people are wise enough to judge political parties and leaders, he said that the electorate will teach a fitting lesson to those who are spreading lies and making false charges.

"KPCC President D.K. Shivakumar and Opposition Leader Siddharamaiah are always at loggerheads, working against each other. The two are walking in opposite directions," he quipped while referring to the Congress party's Bharat Jodo Yatra.

DECODING MYTHOLOGY

Dr. Devdutt Pattanaik - Author, Speaker, Illustrator, Mythologist

The Shaven Head of Adi Shankara

Vedic Rishis are imagined with long hair, tied in a topknot. But Adi Shankara, the Vedanta philosopher, is depicted in popular artworks with a shaved head, covered with a drape. An enquiry into how the Hindu sage and monk treated his hair reveals how it has been used to express materialism and fertility in India since ancient times.

The earliest monk to be depicted in artwork was Gautama Buddha. He lived 2,500 years ago but his images appear only 2,000 years ago, under Greek influence, in Gandhara regions of Northwest India. He is shown with curly hair bunched into a topknot. But this visualisation goes against biographical information that states that when the prince of Kapilavastu renounced his royal life, he cut his hair and wandered with a shaved head. A hunter saw the prince in this state and decided to not hunt that day as a man with a shaven head was deemed inauspicious. This may explain why the earliest artworks do not show the Buddha's person but represent him symbolically as a tree, footwear, and crown. When he was eventually visualised, he was shown with a topknot. But the bun was described as a cranial bump (ushnisha), indicator of his Buddhahood, a state of heightened awareness. In later Thai art, this bump becomes a flame. In other words, care was taken to point out Buddha was not another Vedic sage with a topknot.

Monks with shaved heads found in Buddhist artworks are identified as Ajivikas, who wandered naked and sought to fast unto death. Jain monks preferred plucking hair from the roots, a painful act aimed at forewarning the aspirant of the pain a life of renunciation entails.

A lot was said about the hair of the Gods in Puranic lore and temple art. Shiva's matted hair had the power to capture the river Ganga as she descended from the heavens. Ram asks for juice of the banyan tree in the Ramayana to mat his hair before leaving for forest exile. Krishna has curly hair while Balarama has long smooth hair. The Goddess is imagined as having long thick hair: dishevelled when she is Kali, the wild one; combed, oiled, and tied with a string of flowers when she is Gauri, the domesticated one.

In Dharma-shastra, which lists the rites of passage for the dvija, or twice-born Hindu elite, there is mention of the chuda-karma, or mundan, where a child's head is shaved; all hair is removed except a tuft on the crown. The same was done at funerals, all hair except a tuft on the crown. This ensured there was not a complete break from the material world and household life. The widow, however, was deprived of all her hair and her shaved head hidden by a cloth, indicating her exclusion from the realm of fertility and auspiciousness.

Householder or ascetic

Those who recited the Vedic hymns, and performed Vedic rituals, were expected to sport a tuft of hair on the crown of the head. This was the shikha. It would be tied as a knot. Untying it, as Chanakya does, was a sign of losing control, being angry. Draupadi does the same with her hair. The crest-knot distinguished the Brahmin (half-shaved head) from householder (well combed and oiled hair) from wild forest ascetic (matted hair) and monk (shaved head).

In South India, we hear of two types of Vedic ritualists. Those who tied the tuft of hair in front towards the forehead (mun kudumi or purva shikha). They were identified with the earliest Brahmin migrants to South India, including the Namboodiris of Kerala and the temple priests of Chidambaram temple in Tamil Nadu. Later migrants sported the more common tuft of hair that hangs behind (pin kudumi). Adi Shankara belonged to earlier group, but chose to be a monk.

Adi Shankara is dated by historians to the 8th century. However, his legends come from hagiographies composed at least five centuries later. They describe him as having Tantrik occult powers as well as refined knowledge of Vedanta. Not only did he defeat many Buddhist monks in debate, he also challenged Vedic ritualists. He is also said to have the power to animate corpses. In other words, he challenged men with shaved heads or half-shaved heads and performed deeds of those who sported matted hair. He himself shaved his head. We know this from his legends, where the sight of his shaved head irritates the Vedic ritualist, Mandana Mishra, who Adi Shankara had challenged to a debate.

The formless divine

From the 6th century onwards, historians have noticed a proliferation of Shaiva monastic orders (matha) in South India. Unlike earlier teachers such as Pashupatas, who were wandering hermits and had matted hair, these were milder philosophers, attached to temples. However, structurally, these were very similar to older atheist Buddhist and Jaina orders. Not surprisingly, in later times, Adi Shankara's radical insistence on the formless divine and his shaven head, led to accusations that he was a Prachanna Buddha (crypto-Buddhist). Be that as it may, the only way Shankara could have sat before Mandana Mishra during a debate, without disrespecting his opponent's sensibilities, would be by covering his 'inauspicious' shaven head with a cloth. And this may be how the standard practice of Hindu monks covering their shaven head may have begun.

WORD OF THE DAY

Rabble

Pronunciation: RAB-ul.
Meaning: Rabble is used to refer to a large group of loud people who could become violent (that is, a mob), or, usually in the phrase the rabble, to refer to the great mass of regular people as contrasted with the elite. In the latter use, the word is typically applied in a humorous or exaggerated way to suggest the attitudes of the powerful and wealthy.
Origin: Rabble today is perhaps most familiar in the term rabble-rouser (that's someone who stirs up the masses), but that 19th century coinage was built on a Middle English foundation: for hundreds of years, rabble has referred to various hard-to-manage groups, be they packs of animals or angry mobs. (The word's source, Middle English rabel, means "pack of animals.") In modern use, rabbles are mostly human. Often the word is a synonym of mob, referring as that word does to a disorderly and potentially violent sort of crowd, but it's also used sardonically, especially in the phrase "the rabble," to refer to regular folks—that is, the coarse commoners looked down upon by the elite.
Example: "In March 2020, a rabble of angry homeowners attended a court hearing in DeKalb County, Georgia..." — Rebecca Burns

PHRASE OF THE DAY

Rack and ruin

Meaning: To go to rack and ruin is to fall into a state of complete disrepair or destruction.
Origin: It might be thought that the rack in this phrase refers to the medieval torture device, as in the phrase rack one's brains. This rack is however a variant of the now defunct word wrack, more usually known to us now as wreck. The rather tautological use of the two similar words 'rack' and 'ruin' is for the sake of emphasis. In that respect the phrase follows the pattern of beck and call, chop and change, fair and square etc.
The term 'going to wreck' was the forerunner of 'rack and ruin' and was used as early as 1548, in a sermon by Ephraim Udall:
"The flocke goeth to wrecke and vtterly perisheth."
Henry Bull moved the phrase on to 'wrack and ruin' in his translation of Luther's Commentarie upon the fiftene psalmes, 1577:
"Whiles all things seeme to fall to wracke and ruine."
We finally get to contemporary 'rack and ruin' in 1599, when the Oxford historian Thomas Fowler published The history of Corpus Christi College:
"In the mean season the College shall goe to rack and ruin."
